VOL. XLIII—NO. 105

BRISTOL COUPLE GIVEN $4500 IN SUIT FOR $20,000 AS RESULT OF INJURIES SUSTAINED BY WIFE

Settlement Reached in Court In Suit of Townsend vs. Dougherty

RESULT OF ACCIDENT

Accident Occured in Bristol On Evening of March 31st, 1947

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 16—After the case had been called and a jury drawn, in a case in which a Bristol man and his wife were suing a Bristol man for $20,000 damages, a settlement was reached and the jury instructed to return a verdict in the sums agreed upon.

Rothwell Townsend and his wife, Dorothy Townsend, 1614 Wilson avenue, Bristol, were suing George V. Dougherty, bread salesman, of 279 Roosevelt street, Bristol, for $20,000 damages as compensation for injuries sustained by Mrs. Townsend when Dougherty's truck struck her on a Bristol side-walk near Farragut avenue and Monroe street, on March 31, 1947. Mr. Townsend was suing for $5,000, while Mrs. Townsend claimed $15,000.

The verdict returned gave Mr. Townsend $1500, and Mrs. Townsend, $3000.

The case was called before Judge Calvin S. Boyer in court yesterday. The jury was selected and then the court announced that a settlement had been reached wherein Rothwell Townsend was to receive $1500 and his wife, Dorothy, $3000. The court instructed the jury to return a verdict in those sums.

Early on the evening of March 31st, last year, a light delivery truck operated by Dougherty, allegedly struck Mrs. Townsend who was standing on the sidewalk at Farragut avenue and Monroe street. At the time of the accident Dougherty told police that he drove to the curb near the intersection and tried to park his truck, partly on the sidewalk near the bowling alley. He said that he heard a grating sound, stopped his truck, got out and found that he had struck a "stop" sign and pushed it under his car. Clearing the truck of the "stop" sign he then continued up the street, apparently unaware that he had struck Mrs. Townsend.

Jury Deliberates More Than An Hour Before Making Decision

TRIAL LASTED 2 DAYS

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 16—Deliberating more than an hour, a jury in Civil Court returned a verdict of $2322.63 in favor of the plaintiff, Michael G. Kulzer, Walter M. Kulzer and Julius G. The plaintiff's original claim was $2875 with interest from March 18, 1947. The suit grew out of repairs made to the barn roof, milk house and two silos on the farm of the defendant, at Richboro, during 1946 and 1947.

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

The United Nations Security Council, which was expected to resume debate on the Berlin issue yesterday, met but postponed consideration of that problem until Tuesday. Apparently disinclined to back at this time the protest of the Western powers, the Council decided to afford an opportunity to the United States, Britain and France and to the Soviet Union to supply detailed data on the background of the quarrel. The Western representatives accepted the bid, but Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vishinsky refused to "take the hook" and reiterated his intention not to take part in the Berlin discussions.

Major General William H. Tunner has been named to assume joint command of a unified British and American airlift service to supply blockaded Berlin.

Wilhelm Pieck, leading German Communist, urged a "thorough investigation" of the Leaders of the Socialist Unity party.

If any of the industrial plants in Western Germany now designated for dismantling for reparations are found essential to United European recovery, the United States will insist on their retention, Paul G. Hoffman, Economic Cooperation Administrator, disclosed.

Mr. Hoffman predicted that a significant reduction from the sum ap-

JUST WHO IS PRESIDENT?

Very few persons have attempted to defend President Truman for the frightful blunder he made when he tried to go over Secretary Marshall's head and send his own personal representative to deal with Stalin.

But some of the Truman supporters have asked this question: Why was it so terrible for Mr. Truman to want to send Vinson to Moscow, and yet all right when his predecessor, the late President Roosevelt, was constantly sending his own representatives to call on the Allied Rulers. (Harry Hopkins, for example, repeatedly dealt direct with Churchill, Stalin and others.)

This question opens up most interesting sidelights on the extent to which the nature of our government has changed in the three years since Mr. Truman became President.

The difference is very simple. Mr. Roosevelt WAS President. He ran the show. Sometimes he used too much power; but never was there any question about who was the boss.

But Mr. Truman has turned over to others in his staff some of the most important functions of the Presidency. He has abdicated, to all intents and purposes, from certain fields.

Take the very situation under discussion—the Berlin crisis. While this has been growing worse, during the past two months, it has been Secretary of State Marshall who was in command. Where has President Truman been? Out on the political stump, calling the Republicans and the 80th Congress various bad names.

The merest glance at the itinerary of Mr. Truman's recent campaign tours is enough to prove that he couldn't keep control of the foreign policy, even if he wanted to—there simply isn't time enough in a day!

The Constitution says that the President is to direct foreign policy. Mr. Truman turned this function over to his Secretary of State, in a time of world emergency, and went his merry way, trying to collect votes.

Then he showed up in Washington with a hairbrained scheme which would wreck everything Marshall has been trying to do—and attempted, without notice, to "take over;" just as though he had been in charge all the time.

Under Roosevelt, it made little difference who was Secretary of State. President Roosevelt was his own Secretary of State. Some of those who held the title were merely office boys in gold braid. They knew about their jobs only what their boss saw fit to tell them.

We have gone from one extreme to the other. We have gone from the period when the Secretaries of State knew only what the President wanted them to know, to the place where the President knows only what his State Department sees fit to tell him.

FIND FOUR OFFICERS HAVE OBSOLETE GUNS

School Held at Doylestown By FBI Considered To Be Great Advantage

ANOTHER TO BE HELD

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 15—Four guns of officers attending the Bucks County Police Association firearms school were discovered to be obsolete by FBI agents, Donald M. DeHart and William H. Naylor. The guns are considered dangerous to users.

One well-known law enforcement officer, who has been a cop for 18 years and carried the same gun for 12 years, had never fired his revolver.

Chief of the Morrisville, Police Department Harry F. Christ, who used to be a crack Pennsylvania State Policeman marksman, went on the firing line "just to encourage the other men in his department." Three men from his police department were present.

Although there was one officer from the Doylestown Police Department in attendance, a Bucks County Police Association official expressed regret that only one of the County Seat police force has become a member.

Expressing satisfaction because of the county-wide interest shown in the fire-arms school, Agents DeHart and Naylor emphasized that the next class which will be held on Tuesday, October 26, in the Armory, here, will be in session from 6 until 10 o'clock so that some officers who get off duty late may still attend.

The two FBI agents delighted their proteges with their excellent marksmanship and skill. Both former Captain Daniel D. Atkinson and Captain Henry Ullman commented on the admirable patience and teaching ability of the two FBI specialists with the men on the range.

"As usual there are many more intentional shooters than good shots," said Captain Ullman.

Chief of Police James N. Marion of Washington's Crossing Park emerged as the Bucks champion with a score of 99. Chief Clement R. Sharp, Trumbauersville, came through with 97, and Officer Kurt Zintner, of the Hattboro Police Department, chalked up a score of 91.

Officer Nase, of the Perkasie Police Department, a former Marine was a high scorer with both hands. The cops shot ten rounds, first at 10 yards and then at 15 yards.

K of C TO MEET

"LETTERS ABROAD" PROMOTE SPIRIT OF GOOD-WILL

Mrs. Louis Lowenstein Tells of Project Fostered by UN Council, Phila.

Guest Tells Travel Club of Fostering of International Correspondence

The manner in which the United Nations Council of Philadelphia promotes good will by fostering international correspondence between individuals of similar interests was presented before members of the Travel Club yesterday afternoon. Speaker at this meeting was Mrs. Louis Lowenstein, a member of the board of directors of the United Nations Council, Philadelphia, whose subject was "Letters Abroad."

Yesterday's program was in charge of Mrs. A. Russell Burton, chairman of international relations and peace service committee, the speaker being introduced by Mrs. Harry T. Neher, chairman of the program committee.

Going back to the year the UN Council in Philadelphia was organized, 1943, Mrs. Lowenstein told that said council was "formed by a group to learn more about international problems and help those wishing to know more about international problems." She listed the facilities for use of the public in general—free speakers' bureau, big film library, discussion groups, and the publication of a pamphlet titled "The Councilor." An additional service is that of answering the countless queries that come to the UN headquarters, and "matching" individuals in this country with those abroad to promote correspondence.

"We have no definite connection with the UN at Lake Success, but are the latter's regional repository," she explained. "All we do is try to promote international knowledge and international understanding." The most outstanding phase of the latter is exchange of letters between individuals "matched" by the UN Council. The mushroom growth of the list participating in this international correspondence was of interest to the club women. "The exchange of letters helps individuals here to learn of people in other lands and more of their living conditions. An exchange of ideas is the result." "We receive

CONPHIBTRALANT

Chemists are noted for string-ing together a long word like "tri-phenylchloromethane." A word like that is duck soup for any chemist to understand. He can even pronounce it, because he knows it is just a combination of well-known parts of Greek derivations. He just takes 'em one at a time:

"Tri-phenyl-chloro-methane." (Don't ask us what it is. We picked it up at random from an article on chemistry in the encyclo-pedia.)

So is the U. S. Navy noted for making up words for its own use. The word "Cincpac," of course, is well known as meaning
"Commander-in-chief, Pacific Fleet." Many are longer—like "Conphibtraland." That means
"Commander, Amphibious Training Base, Atlantic Fleet." The abbreviation tells all that at a glance. It is both pronounce-able and handy for use in radio or wire dispatches.

Conphibtraland at present is Rear Admiral Fred D. Kirtland, who is running a grim but fascinating game at the Amphibious Training Base, Little Creek, Va.
The players are Army and Navy officers. They have a model beach and use small-scale landing craft as the principal toys. They use scale-model tanks and other pieces of cargo for loading and unloading.

They see the best places to dump supplies of food and ammunition. The technique of air cover, the deployment of landing troops,
is demonstrated before their eyes.

The value of this sort of play was learned in the recent war.
Men played with the toys, then went ashore on real beaches under real fire. Or as Army pilots they studied a relief model of Japan and were thereby aided in actually following the assigned route to Tokyo later. Whatever the service using models as training aids, the lessons are never dull.

Betting odds against Truman are 20 to 1 in New York, with no Truman money available. This is another plot of the "interests," no doubt.

Campaign speaker says statesmen should find out what the people want and give it to them.
Even if it meant going into some other line of endeavor.

Spelling reform is being opposed by one literary group, on the ground that it is too un-fangled.

Just Who Is President?

This is a situation filled with dynamite. It is no proper way to run our government, and it is so far away from the principles of free government in general, and the Constitution in particular, that there is no telling what catastrophe could happen at any moment.

A Secretary of State should not be called upon, or permitted, to make decisions which the Constitution places on the shoulders of the President.
A President is an elective officer, voted for by the people, responsible to them. A State Secretary is not. He is merely appointive, not in any sense responsive to the will of the electorate.

As for Secretary Marshall, there is little doubt that in future generations he will be one of the most controversial figures of this generation.

Opinion of him, and public support for him, runs the entire gamut of emotions. In some quarters he is venerated as a great statesman and leader. Other groups temper their support of him with a feeling that the Secretary of State is no job for a professional soldier to hold. And at the other extreme are those who feel that unanswered questions in the Marshall background, concerning such matters as his part in the Pearl Harbor cover-up, his fiasco in China, etc., disqualify him for the responsibility he now holds.

Yet it is perfectly obvious that, so far as concerns our critical foreign policy, it is Marshall, with no mandate from the people, who is functioning as President, while Mr. Truman is out campaigning.

The remedy for all this is obvious. It lies in electing a Republican TEAM—a President, Vice-President and Congress who will function together as the Constitution intends.

The way to do that is to be sure to go to the polls on November 2 and VOTE STRAIGHT REPUBLICAN!

Look for the word Republican where it appears on your ballot in heavy black type and put an "X" after it, thus:

REPUBLICAN

(Bohm), officiating "Carillon at Sunset" (Kohlmann), piano and organ duet, postlude "March Jubilant" (Sheppard).
Monday, supper meeting of the official board, the Rev. Leon T.
Moore will be guest speaker; Tuesday-October meeting of Miss Annie Heritage's class will be held at the church; Thursday, Girl Scout Meetings, choir rehearsal, Saturday, Youth Fellowship hay ride.

Today's Quiet Moment

By the Rev. Lehman Strauss
Pastor
Calvary Baptist Church

Text:
"And Jesus said unto them, I am the Bread of life: he that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth in Me shall never thirst" (John 6:35).

Our Father, in these days of famine of spiritual food for our souls, we pray that Thy people will present by lip and by life the peerless Person of the Lord Jesus Christ. Deepen our spiritual experience so that those who hunger for the Bread of Life will see Christ in us. Deliver us from a shallow, superficial Christian experience, and help us to so walk that others will see the image of Thy Son in our words and deeds. We pray in the Name of our Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

INDEPENDENT TEAMS ALL FEEL STING OF DEFEAT

With Goodwill defeating Langhorne Aces last week, every independent gridiron team of this section has felt the sting of defeat. It also marked the first time this season that Langhorne's goal line was crossed.

The triumph put the hosemen in front of the season's standing with four victories and one defeat. Langhorne has now won three and lost one and has the same record as St. Ann's A. A.

Goodwill has also scored at least one touchdown in each game and St. Ann's holds the same record. Newport A. A. has a one and one record, the newly-organized team winning over Torresdale A. C. last Sunday.

With its triumph over Rockne, St. Ann's ran its winning streak to three straight games and will meet Upland A. C. next Tuesday night on the high school field.

BENSALEM GIRLS WIN AT HOCKEY

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Oct. 16.—Goals by Ruth Matlack and Dolores Tilly in the first half of the game gave Bensalem a 2-0 victory over New Hope High in a girls' hockey game yesterday afternoon. It was the second win of the season for the Bensalem lassies.

Other players in the Bensalem line-up were: Anne Aches, M. Hamilton, Doris Plunkett, Mary Martin, M. Stenmer, M. Vandegrift, Jean Dettmer, H. Bristow, and A. Harris.

GOODWILL TO PRACTICE
The Goodwill Hose gridders will hold a practice session tomorrow morning on the Third Ward field. The hosemen will be idle this weekend, giving some of the players a chance to recuperate from injuries. "Tucker" Gross, an end, is out for the remainder of the season. "Mickey" Iannucci and "Buster" Monachello, linemen, were both injured in the Langhorne fracas. Goodwill meets Bordentown Manual Training School next Saturday on the high school field in a night contest.

Returns Verdict Favoring Plaintiff

ous buildings.
The defendant, S. H. Marvel, who left Richboro for Santa Monica, California, in May, 1946, was represented at the trial by his power-of-attorney, Justice of the Peace Applegate. The defendant has entered a counter-claim against the Philadelphia roofing firm of more than $2,000.

Judge Calvin S. Boyer presided at the trial which involved the rebuilding or repairing of a barn roof, two silos, making shutters for the silos, frames, sashes and a catwalk.

Julius G. Kulzer, representing the plaintiffs' firm, testified the last work was done on the defendant's premises Feb. 18, 1947. He testified they received a payment of $3,000, but that a balance of $2,875 is still due them.

Hugh Keenan, who is employed by Frank G. English & Son, who did the actual carpenter work, testified 30 shutters had been repaired and that the work involved new dormer windows, rafters, sheathing and shingling.

General Superintendent Charles E. Brown, who is employed by F. G. English & Son, testified that "extra work," which includes the sash, shutters, frames, trap-door and catwalk, amounted to $687.39.

Taking the witness stand for the defendant, Justice of the Peace Applegate testified that he never knew that Frank G. English had been employed by the plaintiff as a sub-contractor.

"In July, 1946, we had such a severe storm that 80 per cent of the felt and paper roof was ripped off and everything was flooded. I had warned a foreman about uncovering more than he could cover in one day, but they paid no attention to me," said Applegate.

"There was a hardwood maple floor on the second story of the barn which looked like a wash-board."

Mr. Applegate, who said he and a foreman on the Marvel farm took an inventory of the damaged contents, testified 146 bales of hay, 128 bales of straw, 25 bags of mash, 30 bags of feed, seven bags of pig feed, and six other bags of feed, were ruined and had to be used as manure.

Because the foreman, who made the list of damaged contents is in New Jersey and could not be brought into court, Justice of the Peace Applegate refreshed his memory from the original list.

There was also evidence that a cow ate a roofing nail and had to be killed.

The dental examinations are being conducted throughout the school each Tuesday by Dr. McIntyre and thorough physical examinations are also in progress in charge of Dr. Herbert T. Crough. Both types of examinations are given to the odd numbered grades every year so that each student will receive six of each during his twelve school years.

Another plan carried out requires teachers and other employees to be similarly examined every other year. This is the scheduled year for this to be done.

Mrs. Marie Davis, the new school nurse, who was hired recently, upon the resignation of Miss Kathryn Derstine, will take charge on Monday.

Man Taken Back to South For Violating Parole
DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 16.—A colored employee of the Kings Farms, Tullytown, was taken back to North Carolina today accused of violating his parole by leaving that state.

Brinson Stewart, 32, Gibbstown, N. C., was convicted in that community of second degree murder and after serving three years was paroled. He later left the state and finally obtained employment at the Kings Farms.

State Police at Langhorne barracks were advised and yesterday Trooper Kutney arrested Stewart and he was lodged in the Bucks County jail. Today officers from North Carolina came here and left with Stewart for the south.

thousands of letters daily—requests from people abroad for names of people of like interests here to correspond with" she added.

In requesting names of more people here interested in establishing such contacts, Mrs. Loewenstein asked that the following information be given: Name, address, approximate age, interests or hobbies, if the writer understands or writes a foreign language, what country they are interested in. Workers at the UN office endeavor to locate individuals in the countries suggested who have similar interest, the result being that lawyers are writing those of their profession abroad and exchanging interests and ideas, surgeons, skilled workers, teachers, home-makers, etc., are sending letters back and forth to others in their respective categories.

That no action has been taken regarding requests for pen-pals from individual writing from the Russian zone of Germany was mentioned, because of fear of reprisals.

At one point in her talk Mrs. Loewenstein mentioned that "Russia is working 24 hours a day, trying to break down the opinion those of other lands have of us here in the United States. . . . We would like to get behind the 'Iron Curtain', but we don't want to bring reprisals upon these people in the Russian zone, seeking pen-pals, so are letting that matter rest for the present."

In speaking about the United Nations, the guest reminded that it was not formed to make the peace, but to maintain it. "Many crises have been given it to solve, which it was never supposed to cope with," the speaker cited the countless ways in which the UN has aided the peoples of the world as a whole—such as making possible inoculation of 15 million water buffalo in Far East so that the rice crop might not suffer through loss of these animals used in irrigation work.

United Nations Week will open on Monday next, and the many radio, television and other type programs in this connection were mentioned, all aimed "to bring the people constructive results achieved by the UN". Mrs. Loewenstein mentioned that results achieved are encouraging "in spite of the apparent clouded pictures."

A brief article on peace, and need of prayer, was read by Mrs. Burton. During business, Mrs. David M. Sheerer, Jr., presided, with minutes presented by Mrs. George Wright. Mrs. Sheerer announced the fall sessions of Bucks County Federation of Women's Clubs at Quakertown on October 29th; a meeting of the drama group at the home of Mrs. Howard Fodt on November 12th; and session of the literature group, October 28th, at the home of Mrs. George E. Roswell.

Tea was poured by Mrs. Roy Tracy and Mrs. Michael Harrity.
